LEARNING DIARY, Android mobile development MODULE

Date : (26.7.2025)

Activity : Introduction section

Learning outcome: First of all, I would recommend that this course use different videos to teach people about this stuff. These videos are from 2017, and android studio has changed somewhat since then. I already knew most of the stuff shown on this video, since an earlier course I took covered android programming. So generally, the stuff that was covered was pretty easy to do, the only new thing was debugging in android studio.

Activity : Core Elements section

Learning outcome: The only thing in this video that I did not know about was launching websites through the application. The activity and intent stuff were something that I had already learned about earlier. The website code did not work exactly as shown in the video.

Activity : Lists, Layouts, and Images section

Learning outcome: Following this video was difficult due to some of the features shown being legacy/depreciated features. I was already familiar with using layouts and maybe lists too, but I think I hadn't used images before. Overall, the topic was a bit challenging.
